

Access new platform

Access is a company with presence throughout the American Continent (United States, Costa Rica, Brazil, Trinidad & Tobago and Panama), recognized in the administration and document custody sector, as one of the most dynamic companies for its vision of transformation and innovation.

Access initially had a software developed in Drupal to facilitate the registration, search and query of documents associated with different products (customer documents related to loans, trusts or others) of its customers, which supported the management with many opportunities for improvements. It is then when Rootstack as experts in Drupal supported them with the development of the incorporation of the new product within the solution.

The development of a new platform for Access was carried out together with a consultancy action that revealed the need to implement new technologies with greater flexibility that would allow them to incorporate new products to their platform without depending on a supplier. That said, Rootstack focused on:

1. Develop a new solution in Laravel
2. Build a new and more flexible platform to create new products.

Client

Access

Project information

Case highlight

URL