

ATLAPA Website

ATLAPA is a convention center located in Panama City that has a venue for a great variety of events. It has an area that can hold up to 10,500 people and it is the favorite place for all those who wish to carry out high caliber events.

We worked together with them to create a website updated with modern design, responsive and adaptable to all devices. Made with Drupal 8, it has consultation forms and a section that displays with plans and general information all available areas of the Center and the categories between the first floor and the second floor.

It also has a section dedicated to the calendar of events and the site is translatable from Spanish to English and vice versa.
