Cancer prevention in WA: large scale engagement on a vital issue

The Western Australia (WA) Department of Health used Citizen Space to gather information online for their report on cancer control. Hundreds of responses from a wide range of participants allowed them to add rich qualitative evidence to their statistical findings, and to identify some key themes in public understanding of cancer prevention.

Other healthcare policy consultations using our tools include:

- Digital-first primary care, NHS England
- Sale of energy drinks to children, UK Dept of Health & Social Care
- Metro South Disability Plan, Queensland
- Standardised packaging of tobacco products, UK
- National Action Plan for Endometriosis, Australian Government Department of Health and Ageing
- Housing, homelessness and mental health, Australian Mental Health Commission
- Standards for Optical Businesses, General Optical Council, UK

“This consultation process has generated momentum in bringing together a range of organisations and individuals, including the general public, to discuss cancer prevention in WA.”
