Musical Child provides early learning through music for educators of children aged 0-5 years.

The programs consist of group sessions where children are involved in creative play, movement games, song and dance, and playing instruments.

Why introduce early childhood music into your education system? Music is crucial for children's creative and holistic brain development. It improves language, cognitive function, physical and social skills, and boosts self esteem.

Musical Child have tested and perfected their early childhood music education curriculum over the past 18 years in the team's own classes and private studios. The program's effectiveness has been proven in early learning centers throughout Australia, China, and Hong Kong.

The team additionally offer training modules in early childhood music for educators and teachers.

Musical Child's early-learning-through-music approach has much in common with the Orff-Schulwerk method, due to its emphasis on learning through play and the integration of drama and speech.

WooExperts Silicon Dales were enlisted to speed up page-load times in addition to a complete SEO overhaul. They additionally migrated the site to a new hosting environment, with a new email system setup to boot.
