Newlyn

Newlyn has been a specialist in brand typography for more than 20 years, creating beautiful logos and type design for some of the biggest brands in the world.

Founder Miles Newlyn is a world-renowned British designer who founded Newlyn.com in 2004 with the ambition to help creatives achieve their vision with typographic accuracy, craftsmanship and originality.

My best work serves the client and the audience equally. Talking and listening command equal respect, separately they are meaningless. Defining the role a typeface plays between writer and reader forms the backbone of the brief.
– Miles Newlyn

As a type foundry working with many of the world's best-known brands, Newlyn.com uses their vast collective experience to give a typographic voice to companies who have large and varied audiences across regions and languages – companies such as Unilever, Tate, Honda, and Sky, to mention a few. Their iconic work has asserted clients as market leaders and gone on to redefine their sector.

Newlyn are also proud champions of accessibility, and realize that compliance is important to business. All of their custom fonts now include an accessibility character set for designers and organizations wishing to follow W3C initiative guidelines. Not only do these fonts enhance compliance on the web, but they are also important to UI and UX, broadcast media, as well as signage design.
