

Policarbonato Panama website

Policarbonato Panama is a Panama-based company with over eighteen years in the business, that offers different types of solutions regarding polycarbonate sheets for multiple uses. They have been the leader of their field for quite some time now, but they needed a platform that could showcase what they do, potentially reach more clients, and be the base of their online-presence.

They came to Rootstack with the idea of a simple yet classic web page, and we delivered what they needed. Rootstack managed to create and develop a Drupal-based Web Page with all the necessary features any company website should have.

Rootstack focused on two main things:

1. Creating a simple yet effective website that could attract new customers
2. Creating a responsive website adaptable to mobile devices

We listened to their requests and created a very classic and minimalist web page, divided into different sections, most dedicated to showcase what Policarbonato Panama does, what they are and their pasts projects. Of course, we made sure their contact number was displayable through all the sectors of the webpage.

Last, but not least, we made sure this website was adaptable to mobile, so anyone, anywhere, could have access to their platform, being able to navigate through the site in an easy, quick way.
