

Constructive discussions with Dialogue

Citizen's Assembly: an online platform to support the Scottish Climate Assembly

The Scottish Climate Assembly invited a representative group of people from across Scotland to discuss energy consumption and, 'How should Scotland change to tackle the climate emergency in an effective and fair way?'

They used Dialogue as a way for the wider population to participate in climate action as well, offering up suggestions on what should be addressed during the Assembly, who should be invited to speak, and their ideas about how Scotland should reach net-zero emissions targets.

“The general population has a genuine stake in the outcomes of the Assembly and therefore it is important they have the opportunity to have an input into its proceedings. Dialogue was also a chance for those who initially received an invitation but did not make the final selection to still participate.”
