

Media Relations, Thought Leadership

THE UNIVERSITY OF THE ARTS

D+P works with the University of the Arts as an extension of its communications office to develop greater brand recognition through thought leadership and promotion of the great work happening in each of the University's schools. In addition to traditional media relations, D+P has also been engaged to consult on strategic communications for internal and external audiences around leadership transitions. See our results: