

WELCH ALLYN iCART

In the early days of digital medical records, Welch Allyn asked Brownlie Design to participate in an exploration of a cart design that could carry medical instruments and was also capable of recording and storing vital signs, patient history, and doctor's notes. As part of this effort, we developed a display with an interface that required minimal text, organized for quick access and interpretation.