CHALLENGE & SOLUTIONS

Henry Wrage is the owner of Access-Pro, a German software company and Syncfusion Alliance Partner. While developing products, he found that Microsoft's out-of-the-box controls were not meeting his visual design needs. To achieve the user experience he wanted in his apps, he needed to make some changes.

Henry performed market research to find the best RAD (rapid-application development) solution for creating web apps. He found that most products are still very buggy, too complicated, or lack support and, in most cases, are tied to monthly royalties for the developer. When he saw the Syncfusion Dashboard Platform, he realized that the product was clearly outstanding. Syncfusion's controls were more readable and visually appealing without tipping over into unnecessary ornateness. They provided the ultimate look and feel for Access-Pro's product, delivering optimal readability and therefore avoiding visual confusion for his clients.

With Syncfusion's controls, Henry Wrage was able to develop better products than out-of-the-box solutions allowed. As a Syncfusion Alliance Partner, he has seen firsthand how much of a difference Syncfusion can make, and he is looking forward to new features such as building forms for future online data management solutions.
