Scaling Threat Assessment & Management in Olentangy Schools

A Growing District's Success with Navigate360

Olentangy Schools' Success with Navigate360

Building a Scalable, Data-Driven Safety Ecosystem

When it comes to school safety, consistency and collaboration are essential—especially in a rapidly growing district. For Olentangy Schools, Ohio's fastest-growing school system and 4th largest school district, keeping pace with student needs meant creating an integrated, secure, and scalable process for behavioral intervention and threat assessment. With Navigate360, the district has implemented a digital-first approach that empowers multidisciplinary teams to act swiftly, track patterns, and protect student well-being at every level.

- Role: Randy Wright, Chief of Administrative Services (retired from the district in December of 2024)
- Challenge: Decentralized documentation, staff turnover, and growing volume of behavioral concerns
- Solution: Navigate360 Behavioral Case Manager, NTAC (National Threat Assessment Center) Training, and Emergency Management.
- Impact: Enhanced collaboration, standardized processes across 20+ buildings, integrated suicide prevention screening

The Challenge: Scaling Safety Across a Rapidly Growing District

With over 20 schools and a growing student population, Olentangy Schools faced a common but critical challenge: managing behavioral and threat assessment documentation consistently across multiple buildings and teams.

Inconsistent processes, limited access to historical data, and siloed communication made it difficult to track concerns or identify trends—especially in cases of student suicide risk or escalating behaviors.

“ We had new administrators coming in, and we didn’t have a standard, secure way to onboard them. Everyone was managing cases differently. ”

– Randy Wright,
Chief of Administrative Services

The Solution: Standardization, Visibility, & Confidence in Crisis Response

Olentangy Schools implemented Navigate360 Behavioral Case Manager and Threat Assessment Training, adopting NTAC guidelines to create a repeatable and secure workflow for multidisciplinary teams.

“We needed something secure, something flexible, and something that trained our people the right way from day one,” said Randy.

Within weeks, the district had customized the platform to mirror their internal processes, integrating threat assessments, suicide screenings, and follow-ups—all in one centralized system. The intuitive design made it easier for new staff to get up to speed and enabled teams to track every case in real time.

“ Training was phenomenal. We brought in over 40 people—principals, school psychs, counselors—and walked away confident we could handle anything. ”

– Randy Wright,
Chief of Administrative Services

The Results: Faster Response, Stronger Data, & Broader Impact

“ This past month alone, we had 31 cases. That includes both suicide screenings and assessments. Before, that would have been overwhelming. ”

– Randy Wright,
Chief of Administrative Services

The outcomes speak for themselves.

In one school year alone, Olentangy logged over 200 threat assessments and suicide prevention screenings, and every one of them is documented, tracked, and easily accessible.

With automated notifications, custom workflows, and secure multi-role access, Behavioral Case Manager has enabled the district to:

- Ensure every student of concern is reviewed and supported
- Train and onboard staff consistently across all schools
- Leverage data to recognize patterns and drive proactive interventions

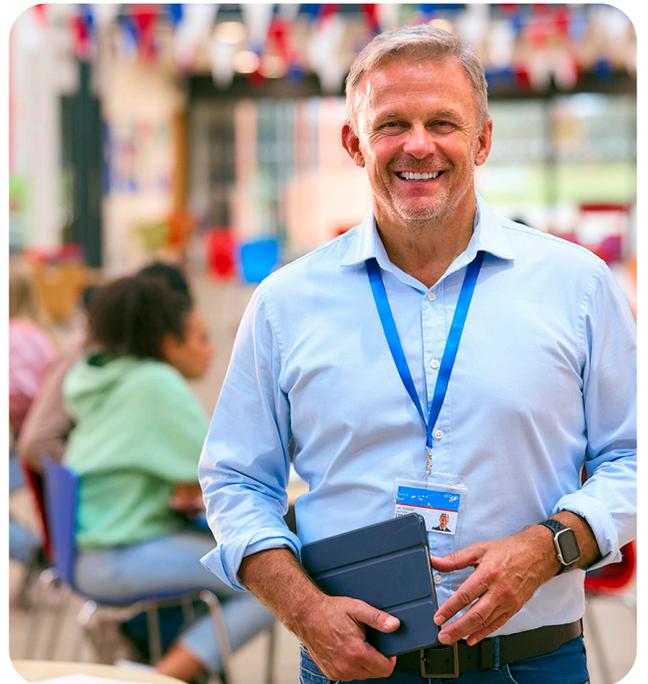

The platform has also helped Olentangy fulfill reporting and compliance needs, especially critical for federal requirements tied to suicide prevention and behavioral health.

Looking Ahead: A Culture of Proactive Student Support

With a solid foundation in place, Olentangy Schools is looking to expand its use of Navigate360 solutions, exploring deeper analytics and district-wide alignment across all tiers of support.

“We’re just scratching the surface. Now we can actually ask: Where are the gaps? What supports do our students really need?”

By investing in scalable systems and best-practice training, the district is shaping a proactive culture—where safety is embedded in the way every team communicates, acts, and supports students.

“ Navigate360 gave us the consistency we needed across buildings—and the confidence to act quickly when a student is at risk. ”

– Randy Wright,
Chief of Administrative Services
