

Website Development for the Ministry of Health of Panama

The Panamanian Ministry of Health had an outdated website that was not easy to use and difficult to administer, and since it is an institution that needs to keep its information up to date they needed to renew their website.

Our team consulted all the necessary functionalities for the website in order to design and develop a website based on the needs of the Ministry and we created the correct information architecture and content organization that allows optimal navigation through the website. Additionally, the website was designed to meet all the requirements of the Government Innovation Authority and we developed and structured a content moderation system to make content management easy to use.
