

Smithsonian Tropical Research Institute Website

The Smithsonian Tropical Research Institute aims to share knowledge about the tropical ecosystems found in Panama, a country known for its natural resources.

Goals

We partner with them and put our goals on the table for development from your new website. These objectives were: Develop a responsive website using Drupal 7, provide a content management system, update the look of the site website through the use of modern graphic design and provide a website that is scalable if the client needs new features and sections.

Website

Smithsonian's New Website Has Design very visual graphic with a large sliding block on the home page and 3 more image blocks small on the right side of the screen. The navigation menu is clear and visible what allows easy navigation through the information. The objective for this project was to achieve a visually appealing website that impacta the user as soon as they enter the site.