

SADHANA CONSULTING ARE IN THEIR ELEMENT

For half the cost of a Starbucks coffee each day, you can have peace of mind and order in your Org. Awesome!

Now, our clients can see what the contingencies are before they make the change, saving everyone a lot of headaches.

ADAM SCHOOLSKY, SENIOR CONSULTANT

Invaluable

Our team was first introduced to Elements earlier this year. Over time we've found that the product has become invaluable for our clients – and we recommend it routinely. For a pittance of a price, Elements will bring clarity to the chaos that we see, as consultants, to so many existing Orgs.

Firstly, the ability to clearly map out a business process is something that is not often done. Now, our customers may have mapped out the steps in Salesforce, for a training document, perhaps, but the connection from the 'HOW' the business works, to the 'WHAT' is done in Salesforce to accommodate the process is entirely absent. Further, six months, or a year down the line, no one has a clue 'WHY' something was done a certain way. Elements makes those connections, easily.

OMG Everything is broken!

We have a client that is now just learning importance of sandboxes and not doing everything in production. In the past, they have made changes to a something like a field label and API name that is a member of 3 workflows, 4 Process Builders, 20 validation rules, 7 formulas and so on. We'd get a panic "OMG Everything is broken!" call and have to decipher what happened.

Now, our client can see what the contingencies are before they make the change, saving everyone a lot of headaches.

Awesome ROI

For half the cost of a Starbucks coffee each day, you can have peace of mind and order in your Org. Awesome! And... no, they didn't pay or bribe me to write this review.