Electronic Signature Software Category

Electronic signature (e-signature) software enables you to collect signatures on digitally shared documents, and removes the need to use physical documents to gather signatures. The platform allows you to distribute legally sensitive documents to collect e-signatures. Organizations use it to encrypt documents like employment paperwork and sales contracts for which employee, partner, or client signatures are needed.

E-signature software allows both senders and recipients to sign documents on a range of devices and operating systems. You can encrypt and secure shared documents and communications with other users. Plus, you can track document status and inform users about required actions such as signing, approving, etc. For security, you can define permission rights and user roles for both internal and external users (customers, partners, contractors etc.). Finally, most platforms provide document creation and storage features or integrate with tools that provide these functionalities.

Before, board members had to sign each document individually which was time consuming. With SigningHub we have reduced approval time significantly and can ensure EU compliance. We promote the use of innovative, useful cloud technologies and we have found just that with SigningHub.”
