Translation Management Category

Translation management software is used by LSPs (language service providers) and freelance translators to handle and organize localization and translation projects. This platform is also called translation project management solution, though a number of applications go beyond offering just project management features. Translation software spans the whole translation text lifecycle; from source text entering to distributing the completed target text. The system offers a centralized translation hub that you can use to collaborate on and track translations.

Many translation tools present inbuilt machine translation and computer-assisted translation functionality. These all-in-one applications enable users to plan and manage projects using a single platform. Similarly, some solutions offer capabilities like resource management, client management and client portals, and billing and invoicing. Some vendors also provide the services of professional translators to clients.

Featured Testimonials

“We have now designed a process where Phrase allows us to have the content ready on our sites within 1 minute since the translators add or update their translations. We are saving an average of 48 hours on engineering time each time we deploy a new feature.”

ENRIQUE QUILEZ
LOCALIZATION MANAGER, LYST

“Thanks to its smart features and format versatility, PhraseApp has been our central tool in making the voice assistant case happen for comdirect.”

NORMAN TIMMLER
MANAGING DIRECTOR, NJIUKO

“By far the most important selection criterion for us was ease of migration from our old system. The last thing we wanted to do was manually reproduce all our spreadsheet data. Phrase’s powerful importing tools and excellent onboarding team made it an easy decision.”

ROBIN LAMBERT
CO-FOUNDER & HEAD OF PRODUCT, LIVESTORM

“Phrase is one of those “just works” apps when it comes to translating an app. Our checkout is now available in 17 languages, but it doesn’t feel in any way heavy to manage all of those translations. Phrase takes away the operational complexity of managing all of the translation files, and we can just get on with building the app.”
