SUMMER 2025
Customer Success Report

Payment Gateway Software Category

Payment gateway software facilitates transactions by communicating transaction information and thus it is similar to physical point of sale used in retail outlets. The platform authorizes credit card and other payments for e-commerce ventures, conventional stores, brick-and-click shops, and online retailers. It protects credit card details by encrypting the confidential information. This procedure ensures secure transmission of private details between the merchant and customer.

A payment gateway works in the background to facilitate and authorize credit and debit card and other transactions. It securely sends and receives information between the e-tailing site and credit card network to facilitate speedy processing of e-commerce transactions. Websites that wish to accept credit card payments online or via a mobile device need to deploy a payment gateway. It connects your product sales and the consumer to help you get paid for the transaction.
