Customer Success Report

Spend Management Software Category

Spend management software manages and monitors business costs such as the expenses of raw materials and components, and services like transportation. This application enables enterprises to account for their business costs, avoid overspending, and ensure the expenses are accurately included in financial statements. Procurement units typically use this platform to plan and track expenses, while accountants also utilize it for financial reporting.

Spend management software is different from expense management solutions which are used to track staff expenses. Spend management tools can be easily integrated with supply chain and procurement programs such as sales & ops planning and supply chain planning applications.

ABOUT EXPENSIFY

Expensify

Expensify was founded with a simple, but clear purpose: to make expense reports not suck. Reporting expenses has never been an easy or intuitive process. Like many others, David Barrett felt firsthand the pain of doing expense reports on antiquated, less-than-intuitive platforms. As a result, he and a buddy started working on a product to alleviate that painful process. That product became Expensify. Expensify started with a receipt-scanning vision and in 2009 Expensify raised $1M to make to vision a reality. People loved the idea, as did the tech community and major publications. Less than a year later, Expensify raised another $5.7M to build SmartScan, a...

“ We love the platform. It’s a very easy-to-navigate solution. Any time we have interacted with PEX support, they have been very knowledgeable and have allowed us to expand our purchasing power overall. Employees can snap pictures of receipts and upload them right away, instead of us having to chase down receipts. And employees no longer have to worry about keeping track of or losing receipts, saving them time on expense management as well. ”

JENNI ASHBY
